

CALL FOR ARTICLES in IJYR

Are you researching youth-led change? Share your work!

The International Journal of Youthquake Research invites original research articles, review papers, policy notes, and practice-focused contributions that examine youth-driven social, cultural, economic, and political transformations worldwide. We welcome interdisciplinary work, qualitative and quantitative studies, mixed-methods research, and evidence-based practitioner perspectives.

SUGGESTED FOCUS AREAS (BUT NOT LIMITED TO THESE)

- Science and Technology (applied sciences, innovations, sustainability, climate change)
- Arts, Literature, Culture, and Creative Studies
- Commerce, Economics, and Business Research
- Management, Entrepreneurship, and Leadership
- Social Sciences (sociology, psychology, political science, anthropology)
- Education, Skills, and Youth Development
- Law, Governance, and Public Policy
- Health, Medicine, and Youth Wellbeing
- Digital Media, ICT, and Society
- Gender, Identity, and Inclusion
- Migration, Refugees, and Diaspora Studies
- Youth Activism, Social Movements, and Civic Participation

AUTHOR GUIDELINES

- Title of the paper.
- Abstract (150–250 words, 4–6 keywords).
- Main text (Introduction, Methods, Results/Findings, Discussion, Conclusion).
- References: Authors may use any standard style (APA, MLA, Chicago, Harvard, ICMJE, etc.) relevant to their discipline — must be consistent throughout.
- File Format: MS Word (.docx) and PDF.
- Font: Times New Roman.
- Font Size: 12 pt, Line Spacing: 1.5, Justified.

PLAGIARISM & SCREENING POLICY

- All submitted articles will undergo a plagiarism check and blind peer screening.
- Direct reproduction or copying from other sources is strictly prohibited.
- Proper references must be provided in the article, either as footnotes or in the reference list.
- The Editorial Board reserves the right to accept or reject any article without assigning any reason.

SUBMISSION LINK

ijyr.org

More Information

www.ijyr.org

editor@ijyr.org